

Animals

Last Modified on 03/19/2025 12:18 pm EDT

Animals

The information below is meant to guide and encourage professional safety standards when working with animals in student films.

Please Note: Student films featuring animals on set require special approval from the course instructor and production advisor. They may require an additional free Animal Exhibit Permit from the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. To find out if an animal will need a permit, take a look through Article 161 for guidance.

If you need assistance, please email production.office@nyu.edu

Guidelines for Working with Animals on Set

Although these guidelines apply to owners, the director is ultimately responsible for the well-being of any animal (or person) on set. For safety reasons, please be aware that the American Humane Association discourages the use of any animal in lieu of a professionally trained animal that is acclimated to work on a film set.

This information has been obtained from the American Humane Association (AHA). View the AHA's Complete guidelines (including tips on working with all species of animals, and visit the American Humane Association Website for more information.

Visit the Humane Hollywood Website to earn the American Humane Association's End Credit Disclaimer, "No Animals Were Harmed"® Applying for this logo is free